COLLEGE OF EDUCATION AWARDS

Outstanding Faculty Research and Scholarship Award

Yongmei Ni, PhD

Dr. Ni is an Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of Educational Leadership and Policy. She has a distinguished record of rigorous and relevant scholarship. Her record of research in economics of education, school choice, educational leadership, and quantitative research methods have resulted in a) illuminating the complexity of school choice policies, particularly the effects on students and educators alike, b) exploring the educator labor market, and

c) increased understanding of the impact of quality of leadership preparation programs on leadership practices. Dr. Ni has established herself as an expert in educational policy and school administration, and is a highly respected leader in the field, both nationally and internationally. Dr. Ni's scholarship centers on educational leadership and policy research, aiming to improve equity and excellence for all students.

Outstanding Early Career Faculty Research and Scholarship Award

Eric Poitras, PhD

Dr. Poitras is an Assistant Professor in department, university of Educational Psychology. His program of research is focused on novel ways for adaptive instructional systems to track, detect, and model the cognitive, affective, metacognitive, and motivational (CAMP) processes that mediate learning. He utilizes a variety of individualized instruction across a wide variety of formal and informal learning contexts. His research is interdisciplinary in focus, as it incorporates elements from cognitive psychology, computer science, education, and data mining, in their application to a wide variety of content learning areas. Dr. Poitras has also collaborated with colleagues from the Department to expand intelligent tutoring systems to delivery of feedback via natural language processing for more clinical applications. He is particularly grateful for the support that the College of Education has provided to enable this work.

Outstanding Early Career Faculty Teaching Award

Sharon A. Aiken-Wisniewski, PhD

Dr. Aiken-Wisniewski is a Clinical Associate Professor in the Department of Educational Leadership and Policy. The exchange of ideas that occurs through an active classroom environment had such profound impact on her as a first-generation college student that she selected a career in education. Through classroom presentations, seminars, or meetings with advisees, she not only observed students actively engaging with concepts such as restorative justice, empathy, and inclusion, but experienced deeper understanding about these concepts through dialogue and shared lived experiences. The opportunity to learn from and with students, colleagues, and strangers expands her world view, offers strategies to negotiate life with grace, and presents opportunities for continual development. The impact of teaching is complex, multifaceted, and on-going. Teaching impacts self, other individuals, and the future.

Outstanding Early Career Faculty Service Award

Aaron Fischer, PhD, BCBA

Dr. Fischer is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Educational Psychology. He has been involved in service at the community, department/university, and national levels. A large portion of Dr. Fischer's service occurs within Utah's public schools. In particular, he has developed strong and lasting relationships with Granite, Salt Lake, Canyon, and Washington County school districts. Within these districts, the exceptional student members of his team collaborate with district teachers, administrators and diverse students to improve academic, behavioral, and social-emotional outcomes. The impact of his service has been felt, not only by teachers, school staff and parents, but most of all by students. His positivity and belief in the goodness of people is contagious. His ability to incorporate the input and needs of others is impressive.

Outstanding Staff Award

Kristen Lindsay

Kristen is the Executive Secretary for the Urban Institute for Teacher Education. She serves as the first point of contact for UITE students, as well as many others coming to our building. Students feel welcomed by Kristen. She consistently inquires with each faculty member as to how she can assist them. Whatever the task, she approaches each with a positive attitude and is always focused on problem solving. You can count on her to help others in the college with special projects that need an extra hand. Kristen is hardworking and a joy to be around.

UNIVERSITY OF UTAH AWARDS

University Professor 2020-2022

Anne Cook, PhD

The awarding of University Professor confers recognition of extraordinary skill in university teaching which crosses conventional boundaries, emphasizes interdisciplinary relationships, and reflects a strong commitment to a liberal education. Individuals at this rank have demonstrated exceptional ability in challenging and stimulating the intellectual curiosity of undergraduate students. Dr. Cook will hold the special rank of University Professor for two years. Dr. Cook was selected for her innovative work in teaching and mentoring undergraduate researchers, as well as her work as an administrator in promoting the role of undergraduates in the research mission of the College of Education. During the period of the award, Dr. Cook will collaborate with the Office of Undergraduate Research to design coursework that trains undergraduate research mentees in essential skills required for successful research experiences in their individual disciplines and majors. She will also develop programs for faculty and staff across campus who are interested in enhancing their mentoring of undergraduate researchers.

Graduate School Distinguished Mentor Award

William Smith, PhD

The Distinguished Mentor Award recognizes faculty who have provided the type of leadership that has led to a supportive environment for research and scholarly pursuits. Dr. Smith has demonstrated the leadership to support and advocate for students and postdoctoral scholars to ensure their successful and timely completion of their degrees and projects. Further, Dr. Smith has helped integrate students and postdoctoral scholars into the broader culture of the discipline, promote healthy environments for diversity and inclusiveness, and held high standards for others while developing initiatives that improve mentorship access. Dr. Smith has further exemplified mentorship by including students and postdoctoral scholars on the majority of his publications and professional presentations. One of his most recognized accomplishments at the University of Utah is the co-founding of a competitive grant-based scholarship mentoring project aimed at recruiting, retaining, and graduating African American doctoral students in every college at the university, the African American Doctoral Scholars Initiative. Dr. Smith is also the recipient of the prestigious Spencer Mentor Award that recognizes a select group of mentors who have made extraordinary contributions in supporting the research preparation and career trajectories of graduate students engaged in education research.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION PROFESSOR EMERITUS

Monica L. Ferguson, MS, CCC-SLP, BCS-CL

Monica L. Ferguson received her Master of Science degree from the University of New Mexico. She is a Fellow of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association and a National Board Certified Child Language Specialist and Speech-Language Pathologist. Ms. Ferguson is a Research Associate in the Urban Institute for Teacher Education, Faculty Associate in the Special Education Department, and Co-Founder and former Co-Director of The Stegner Young Scholars' Writing Institute run by the College of Education and Salt Lake City School District.

Ms. Ferguson's research, expertise, and publications are in the areas of language, writing, communication, and increasing academic achievement for school-age, multi-level learners. She has served as an expert consultant on several global school improvement projects for USAID and UNICEF in Zanzibar, Tanzania, Bosnia-Herzegovina, and Nicaragua. Ms. Ferguson has education preK-12 general/special education educators, speech-language pathologists, and administrators on effective teaching practices throughout the United States.

John Funk, MEd

John Funk Clinical Instructor in the Urban Institute for Teacher Education. He began teaching at the University of Utah in 1997. John taught as part of the Early Childhood and Elementary Education programs in the Departments of Educational Studies, Teaching and Learning, Family Consumer Studies, and Educational Psychology. He received a Distinguished Teaching Award from the University of Utah in 2011. Prior to coming to the U, John taught Kindergarten, 1st, and 2nd grades for 22 years, and also taught for five years at Head Start. In 1996, John was named Utah Teacher of the Year, the first Kindergarten teacher ever chosen. He also served as President of Utah Association for the Education of Young Children. As a national consultant, he has worked with McGraw Hill, Discount School Supply, Frog Street, and twenty state early childhood organizations. He served on the editorial panel for the National Association for the Education of Young Children's research journal, Young Children.

Michael Gardner, PhD

Dr. Michael Gardner, an honored member of the Department of Educational Psychology and a highly regarded colleague, has enjoyed a long and productive career in the Department of Educational Psychology. He has been a central figure in our Learning Sciences program since he joined the department in 1982. He has provided service to the department as a Program Director of Instructional Design and Educational Technology, Learning Sciences, and the Master's in Statistics program. He also served as the Associate Chair from 2007 until 2014, and was the College of Education's Interim Dean in 2013. He has close to 50 refereed articles and book chapters, in addition to numerous peer reviewed papers, and has presented at several scientific meetings. Dr. Gardner has taught a number of courses over his 38-year career and has provided crucial advisement and research mentorship to countless students.

Leanne Hawken, PhD

Dr. Leanne Hawken has over 25 years of experience in the field of Special Education and has been a tenure track faculty member in the Department of Special Education since 2002. Professor Hawken is a Board Certified Behavior Analyst and a recognized scholar in the area of positive behavior supports for students with disabilities. Her textbook, Responding to Problem Behavior in Schools: Check in, Check out, is currently in the third edition. She has conducted multiple empirical investigations examining strategies for supporting students with disabilities in inclusive settings, including the efficacy of the check in – check out intervention. Dr. Hawken has shared her expertise with colleagues and students through courses, committee work, and conferences. Dr. Hawken has been an active member of the Association for Positive Behavior Support and has supported local schools through her contracts with districts and the Utah Personnel Development Center. The impact that Dr. Hawken has had on students, her colleagues, and the field of Special Education is significant.

Cathy Nelson, PhD

Dr. Cathy Nelson has been a valued member of the Department of Special Education for over 26 years. During her time at the University of Utah, she has served as a clinical instructor, a program specialist, a clinical assistant professor, and a tenure track associate professor. She is internationally recognized as a scholar in the area of Deafblind and Early Childhood Special Education. Of particular note is her textbook, Child-guided strategies: The van Dijk approach to assessment for understanding children and youth with sensory impairments and multiple disabilities (which has recently been translated into Arabic and Farsi), and her multiple empirical investigations examining the efficacy of specific intervention strategies for young children with disabilities. She has been an incredibly active member of the International Council for Exceptional Children – Division on Early Childhood, Deafblind International, and the Association for the Education and Rehabilitation of the Blind and Visually Impaired. Further, Dr. Nelson's connections with, and support of, students has been particularly noteworthy and has certainly contributed to the University of Utah's goal of promoting student success.

Kristen Paul, MEd

Kristen Paul has over 30 years of experience in the field of Special Education and has been a central figure in the Early Childhood Special Education program and the Deafblind program since she joined the Department of Special Education in 2009. Kristen has served the highly valued and critical role of supervising students who are pursuing degrees/licenses in ECSE and Deafblind. Over the years, Kristen has been an active member of the International Council for Exceptional Children - Division on Early Childhood and Deafblind International. Kristen's research, publications, and presentations related to supporting young children with disabilities are extremely noteworthy. Her service as a Board Member for the Utah Inclusive Arts Festival, and her interdisciplinary work in supporting U of U students in modern dance and special education as they collaborate to develop and implement effective and individualized arts instruction for students with disabilities in inclusive classrooms is significant. Kristen's extraordinary skills and commitment have made a substantial and positive impact in the lives of individuals with disabilities and their families.

Dan Woltz, PhD

Dr. Dan Woltz has enjoyed a long and productive career in the Department of Educational Psychology and has been a central figure in the Learning Sciences program since he joined the department in 1990. He has close to 50 refereed articles, book chapters, and published abstracts in addition to numerous peer reviewed papers at professional meetings. He has provided service to the department (e.g., program director, student committees), college (e.g., Retention, Promotion & Tenure college committee) and the university (e.g., University Research Committee, graduate council, Institutional Review Board). He has taught a number of courses over his 30-year career in the department and provided advising and mentorship to countless students. Dr. Woltz is an honored member of the Department of Educational Psychology and a highly regarded colleague.
